Hey Love,

Welcome. You didn't land here by accident. This isn't just a workbook. it's a beginning. A soft opening. A sacred pause to remember that your peace is not a luxury... it's your birthright. As a single mama, and a woman who's had to walk away from what broke me just to hear myself think again, I made this for us. For the ones who are done surviving and ready to start living—on purpose, and in full color.

Taking a leap into the world can feel scary, I know. But when you're supported by a community of like minds and like hearts, the next step doesn't have to be so heavy. It gets to come with clarity. With courage. With ease.

Take what you need. Leave what you don't. Let this be your permission slip to want more and move toward it... one peaceful step at a time.

About the Process

This isn't just about planning a move. It's about moving differently. The Peace Passport was designed to meet you at the intersection of clarity, courage, and divine timing. If it found its way to you, that's not a coincidence. That's alignment. You've likely been carrying a quiet knowing for a while now... that something needs to shift... that you need to shift. And this guide? It's a sacred start.

YOUR THOUGHTS:

Most people jump straight into logistics; flights, visas, apartments. But they forget to prepare themselves. They don't talk about the grief that can rise when you release the life you once lived. Or the culture shock that hits when you realize you've left more than just your location... you've left old versions of yourself behind too.

This process is gentle. But it's intentional. You'll be invited to check in with yourself, name what's no longer working, and begin clearing space for a life that feels like peace... not pressure. You don't have to rush. You don't have to know all the answers. You just have to be willing to start. This is your soul's way of saying: I'm ready.

“I am deliberate and afraid of nothing.”

— Audre Lorde

Your First Steps Forward

Most people jump into moving abroad by focusing on the details—flights, housing, visas. But the truth is, what throws most folks off course isn't the logistics... it's the emotional, mental, and spiritual work they didn't prepare for.

Imagine finally stepping into your dream life... and your nervous system doesn't know what to do with it. You can't take your trauma and your old concepts of the world with you. Not on this journey. You've got to pack it up, honor it, and release it—before you move forward.

This page is here to help you do just that—so you don't just relocate your body, but realign your spirit for the life you truly want.

“Where Am I Really?” Map

STEP 1: LOCATE YOURSELF

Before you pack your bags or shift your life, check in with the you that exists right now.

Where are you, really—emotionally, mentally, spiritually?

Mini Ritual:

Place your hand over your heart. Breathe deeply for 60 seconds. Say out loud:

“I honor where I am, and I trust where I’m going.”

REFLECTION PROMPTS

- What has me feeling stuck or overwhelmed right now?

- What areas of my life feel like they’re whispering, “It’s time to go”?

- What would peace feel like if I gave myself permission to choose it?

I’m not just moving—I’m becoming.

Step 2: Reclaim Your Power

The Boundary Checkpoint

Every departure requires custom... and this one is all about what you're not taking with you. Let's draw some boundaries and reclaim your peace.

Name 3 peace-drainers you're ready to stop giving access to:

ONE

THREE

Write 3 boundaries that will help you protect your peace this week:

1. I will no longer _____

2. I will start _____

3. I give myself permission to _____

The First Action Ticket

STEP 3: BEGIN YOUR JOURNEY

No need to leap—just begin.
These are small, sacred actions
to shift your energy from stuck to sovereign.

Bonus (Optional):

Write your “Peace Word” for this season (ex: soft, unplugged, sacred, wealthy)
and post it somewhere you’ll see it daily.

CHOOSE ONE TO START TODAY:

- Turn off your notifications after 8PM.
- Rename your savings jar: “My Freedom Fund.”
- Write a “Dear Me” letter from your future self.
- Ask one safe friend, “Can I share my dream without advice?”
- Schedule a 10-minute “peace pause” this week—just for you.

Trust yourself.

YOUR NEXT 3 LOGISTICAL MOVES

(with Inner Work + Peace-First Action)

1

Choose Your Top 2–3 Destination Options

Outer Work: Start narrowing down the countries that actually fit your lifestyle, your needs, and your values. Don't just dream—research. Look at safety, community, cost of living, and family-friendly resources if you're traveling with children.

Inner Work: Ask yourself, “Where does my nervous system relax?” This decision should feel like relief, not pressure. Don't let aesthetics override alignment.

Action Step: Use your travel journal or planning notebook to start a “Top 3 Countries” list. Jot down what calls you there... and what would make you feel at home.

Look Into Visa + Residency Options Early

Outer Work: Every country has its own process. Some are single-parent friendly, others... not so much. Start reading the fine print. Search for visa options by lifestyle or profession, not just location.

Inner Work: Give yourself permission to just gather, not commit. Information is power, not pressure.

Action Step: Dedicate one page in your journal to each country's visa notes. Highlight anything that applies to your current season of life, especially if you're moving with children or planning long-term.

Request All Important Documents NOW

Outer Work: Start collecting passports, birth certificates, custody documents, and medical records while you're still in your home country. It's one of those things you'll thank yourself for later.

Inner Work: This is an act of self-leadership. Reclaiming your paperwork is reclaiming your narrative.

Action Step: Use the resource checklist in the back of your travel journal (or whatever planner you're using) to track which documents you've secured and which still need to be requested. Bonus: keep digital copies backed up in a cloud folder labeled “Ready to Move.”

Resources

Your peace needs a plan. And there's no better time to start than now.

These are the tools that helped me stay grounded, organized, and clear while planning my move abroad—especially as a single mama doing it all. When I got distracted or off track (which happened often), the pages of these planners... and the words I poured into them... brought me right back to where I belong. If you're serious about creating change, don't wait. These tools are here to support you from the very first step.

BRING YOUR DREAMS TO LIFE

To bring your plan to life, I personally recommend the Legend Planner It's undated, beautifully designed, and a powerful accountability partner.

What makes it ideal:

- No dates = no guilt = start when YOU start
- Monthly vision spreads, weekly goal breakdowns, habit trackers
- Great for ADHD minds and visual thinkers
- It aligns seamlessly with your Peace Fund, GOLD Formula, and quiet season rituals

I use it to:

- Organize my monthly peace and power goals
- Reflect on habits, wins, and spiritual alignment
- Track how I show up for myself day to day

This planner turns this PDF into your plan. Your peace deserves structure

My Testimonial

Sure, I've helped a handful of people move abroad—and I've inspired more than I can count through TikTok. But this is the testimony that matters most. The one written in real-life pivots, in late-night breakdowns and early morning courage. The one that designs the products, fuels the message, and anchors the work. Because I'm not just teaching it... I lived it.

I thought I had a solid plan. Housing lined up, route mapped out, mindset strong. But the housing fell through. I had to pivot—fast and often. And then came the part no one warns you about: the racism we try to escape in the U.S. shows up here too. Colonizer energy is alive and well in paradise. White Americans move here and bring their entitlement with them, pricing out locals and making it harder for families like mine to just be.

After it took six whole days and nights just to get here, there were so many moments I could've turned back. But I didn't. Because I remembered my why. I had already done the mindset work to carry me through the chaos. Staying grounded—mentally, spiritually, and emotionally—is what helped me move through the hard moments without losing myself.

And now? I feel safe. I feel secure. And my daughter is finally free... to just be.

Your dream life is calling

Your dream life isn't just waiting—it's calling. Calling to your peace. Calling to that version of you who's done settling, done shrinking, done surviving. And if you're anything like me, it's not just about you—it's about your baby too. I made this leap for my peace and my daughter's future.

ENROLL NOW

I offer one-to-one support for women who are ready to move abroad, but need more than a checklist—they need someone who gets it. Someone who's lived it. A lot of the voices out here giving travel advice are speaking from a single woman's perspective—or from a married couple's lane. And while I respect that, they just don't get what it's like to do this with a little one on your hip and the weight of it all on your shoulders.

I'll help you create a plan that feels real, aligned, and built around your actual life... not just the highlight reel. You don't have to do this alone. Let's build your exit with clarity, courage, and a whole lot of care.
