WELCOME TO PACK YOUR PEACE

This isn't just a workbook; it's your quiet revolution.

I created this because I know what it feels like to be stretched thin, making big moves while still trying to hold it all together. Whether you're preparing to move abroad, leave chaos behind, or simply get your mind right, this space was built with your nervous system in mind.

This isn't hustle; it's healing.

It's for the woman learning to say "no" without guilt.

The mama who needs five minutes of quiet before the world starts talking again.

The dreamer who's done explaining and ready to move in peace.

This guide was born from my own journey of leaving, starting over, and learning that the first real step toward freedom... is silence.

So take your time. Come back to it when needed. Let this be your reminder that your peace is valid, your vision is real, and your boundaries are sacred.

Let's begin.

THIS COURSE IS FOR YOU IF:

You're Craving Peace in a Loud World

You're tired of being "on" all the time... answering texts, managing drama, juggling everybody's expectations like it's your job. Deep down, you know something's gotta shift. You just need space to breathe and a way to unplug without the guilt trip. This course gives you the green light and the blueprint to protect your peace like your life depends on it—because honestly, it does.

You're Planning a Move (or Need an Exit Strategy)

Whether you're dreaming about a soft life abroad or just trying to leave behind what no longer serves you, you know it's time. But with all the noise around you, it's hard to think straight—let alone plan your next step. This playbook helps you get still, get grounded, and move with intention... even if you're starting from scratch.

You're Done Explaining Yourself

You're not rude... you're just done. Done with the over-explaining, the people-pleasing, and the always-being-available energy. You've grown into a version of yourself that chooses peace over performance. And if that makes some folks uncomfortable? Let 'em. This course helps you stand firm in your peacesoftly, but with your whole chest.

COURSE OVERVIEW

Peace Audit

Before you make a move... literally or spiritually... you have to take inventory. This section guides you in identifying what's draining your peace, what restores it, and how to build a life that supports your nervous system, not fights it.

The Exit Prep Checklist (Even If You're Broke)

Leaving chaos doesn't have to wait on a fat savings account. This checklist gives you tangible, low-cost steps to start preparing for your exit, no matter where you're starting from.

4 Budget-Friendly Places to Move (or Escape To)

Need a change of scenery? These locations offer peace, affordability, and community. Whether you're seeking healing or a soft landing, these places make the vision feel reachable.

The "Don't Go Back" Budget Plan

Peace isn't just about leaving—it's about not having to go back. This section helps you create a budget that supports your freedom and prevents burnout or boomerang moves.

Resources for Survivors, Moms & Movers

This digital toolkit includes work-from-anywhere boards, income platforms, housing hacks, and support networks specifically curated for solo parents and freedom-seekers.

06

Passport Validity & Renewal Tips

Your freedom papers matter. This section makes sure your documents are valid, updated, and ready—because no one's stopping your peace at the gate.

07

Traveling Solo With a Child?

This one's essential. Here, you'll find exactly what documents you need to travel legally and safely with your child, plus tips to avoid surprises at the border.

08

How You Can Earn Abroad

From digital hustle to local gigs, this section gives you income ideas that align with your lifestyle and values, because peace also means financial sustainability.

Staying Grounded Abroad – A Note for the Unicorns

When Your Magic Travels With You. This section offers a loving but honest reminder for those who move through the world with extra sparkle... because admiration is real, but so is your need for peace, protection, and truth.

PEACE AUDIT

This chapter invites you to slow down and take inventory. Before you can create more peace, you need to see clearly what's currently standing in its way. This is your sacred pause, a space to acknowledge what drains you, what restores you, and where small shifts can create major relief. No shame. Just truth.... and power.

Start With Stillness: Your Peace Audit

This is your starting point. Before you book a flight, make a budget, or tell anyone your plan—you have to check in with your energy. This section is about recognizing what peace means to you and what's blocking it in your current life.

We'll start by asking a few questions designed to hold up the mirror gently; so you can see where the tension lives, and where your peace is waiting to return.

Reflection Prompts:

- What's draining you most right now; mentally, emotionally, financially?
- What does peace actually look like in your daily life? Is it quiet mornings? Less stress around money? More time to breathe?
- Who or what feels like a weight? Be honest. No guilt.
- What's one small decision that would give you relief this week?

Tangible Takeaways:

- Keep a 7-day "energy journal." Write down what boosts or drains your peace each day.
- Create two columns: "Peace-Givers" and "Peace-Takers." Add at least 5 each.
- Unsubscribe from 1 email list, unfollow 1 account, block 1 energy vampire. Start small.
- Create a "peace corner" in your home; a small sacred space just for breathing, journaling, or sitting still.
- Write your "Peace Manifesto." This is a 3–5 sentence declaration of what peace means to you and what you're no longer tolerating.

Optional Deeper Work:

- Book an astrocartography reading to understand what global locations best align with your energy, goals, and healing journey.
- Consider a 90-day quiet season: no gossip, no draining convos, no external distractions... just you, your healing, and your vision.

THE EXIT PREP CHECKLIST (EVEN IF YOU'RE BROKE)

You don't need a trust fund to start planning your freedom. In this chapter, you'll walk through realistic, accessible steps to prepare for your next move, especially if you're starting with limited funds. This is where strategy meets surrender, and we turn your exit into a series of doable steps.

EXIT PREP CHECKLIST (EVEN IF YOU'RE BROKE)

Track your expenses for the next 30 days using a simple spreadsheet or budget app. Highlight your biggest energy and money leaks.

Unlock your phone permanently while it's in good standing with your carrier. Ensure it's eligible for international use. Get a backup device also.

Open a 'Peace Fund' bank account. This is your sacred escape fund...even if you start with just $5/week. Use an online bank if needed.

Switch to a low-cost prepaid phone service or retain your number with T-Mobile's $10/month pause plan.

Renew or apply for your passport book(not just the card). Ensure it has at least 6 months validity from your projected travel date.

Brainstorm and test 1–2 remote income ideas(VA work, freelance writing, online teaching, affiliate marketing, etc.)

If traveling with a child, gather essential documents: birth certificate, custody paperwork, notarized travel letters if co-parent is listed.

Sell or donate items you don't use or love. Consider a yard sale, Facebook Marketplace, or consignment apps to pad your Peace Fund.

EXIT PREP CHECKLIST (EVEN IF YOU'RE BROKE)

Choose a soft landing destination that allows for mental decompression; not necessarily your forever home. Mexico, Portugal, and Thailand are great starts.

Find and follow expat Facebook groups and digital nomad communities specific to your destination. Start asking questions early.

Compile both local and international aid resources: relocation grants, single mom travel funds, scholarship programs, remote work job boards.

Tell one person who truly supports your evolution and is in the doing phase, not the doubting phase. Build with them, not just dream.

Create a 60-90 day departure timeline. Break it into weekly focus points (decluttering, saving, paperwork, mindset prep).

Print out your vision or Peace Manifesto and post it somewhere visible. Make your dream louder than your fear.

EXIT PREP CHECKLIST (EVEN IF YOU'RE BROKE)

Research the visa or residency requirements for your destination country before you leave the U.S.

Some countries (especially in Asia) require that you apply for a visa before departure. Others, like Portugal, often allow or prefer that you apply after arrival. Your best resource is the official immigration website of the country you're moving to. For real-time insights, connect with people who have already obtained residency via expat-focused Facebook groups or relocation forums. Lived experience often fills in the gaps that official websites leave out.

Create an emotional go-bag: journal, healing playlist, meditation app, and a copy of the Peace Plan to ground your nervous system.

Research the cost of living in your destination. Use sites like Numbeo, Expatistan, and local Facebook groups to compare housing, food, transportation, and healthcare costs. Prioritize insights from long-term expats with similar lifestyles. Many social media posts share tourist pricing or are outdated. Draft a sample monthly budget to spot gaps and prepare accordingly.

Pro Tip:

- Look into dual citizenship or second passports via ancestry, marriage, or childbirth abroad.
- Consider getting a second unlocked phone bonus points if it has an ESIM option.

4 BUDGET-FRIENDLY PLACES TO MOVE (OR ESCAPE TO)

Your peaceful life is calling, and you deserve options. Here you'll find four destinations that offer calm, community, and cost-effective living. Whether you're window shopping or ready to pack your bags, let this section inspire you to dream and decide.

4 BUDGET-FRIENDLY PLACES TO MOVE (OR ESCAPE TO)

MEXICO

Mexico– Large Black expat communities, low cost of living, family-friendly, healing pace.

THAILAND

Thailand – Peaceful, spiritual, cost-effective. Teachers thrive here. Great for a fall relocation.

COLOMBIA

Colombia– Medellin offers spring weather year-round, reliable infrastructure, and vibrant culture.

PORTUGAL

Portugal – Safe, beautiful, easy visa process. Great for solo moms and remote workers.

THE 'DON'T GO BACK' BUDGET PLAN

Leaving is only half the battle. Staying gone... and staying well... is the real work. This chapter walks you through building a financial cushion that supports your peace and helps you avoid returning to burnout, chaos, or survival mode.

THE 'DON'T GO BACK' BUDGET PLAN

Budget With the End in Mind

Peace costs... but it also pays. This section is where we get real about money, movement, and mindset. Before you can build a budget that keeps you from boomeranging back into chaos, you need a clear vision of where you're going. That means doing some honest, grounded research. We're not budgeting blindly! We're budgeting with the end in mind.

Start by choosing one or two destinations you're seriously considering. Research the cost of living, average rent, transportation, schooling (if you have kids), and how much everyday life actually costs. Use platforms like Numbeo, Expatistan, or local expat Facebook groups to get up-to-date info from people who are actually living there.

Don't just look at the cheapest option. Look at what "feels" like a lifestyle upgrade for you. Is it safe? Walkable? Family-friendly? Peaceful? These are part of the budget conversation too. A place can be affordable and still feel like struggle if it doesn't support your nervous system.

Once you have a ballpark cost, work backward. What will it take for you to comfortably make that move... and stay gone? Think flight costs, Airbnb or deposit on long-term housing, emergency fund, and three to six months of basic living expenses. Add in a buffer. Then divide that total by the number of months between now and your desired move date. That's your monthly savings target.

This isn't about panic saving. It's about purposeful stacking. Even $100 a month adds up when you're moving in alignment. Peace is the mission, but strategy is how you keep it. Let's build your 'Don't Go Back' plan like the future you is already there... waiting, grounded, and free.

VISA & RESIDENCY PREP: STAY READY SO YOU DON'T HAVE TO RUSH

"Prepare yourself so you can be a rainbow in somebody else's cloud." — Maya Angelou

In today's global climate, policies change fast—and if you want to move with peace, you need to move with preparation. That means knowing the residency and visa options for your dream country before you buy a flight. Many places now require you to apply from your home country, especially if you're from the U.S.

Mexico: Know Before You Go

Mexico once offered in-country residency processing, but as of early 2025, that door is now closed for most travelers. You must now begin your temporary residency application before leaving the U.S. Requirements vary and are actively changing—some consulates are stricter than others, and even immigration attorneys have been caught off-guard by updates in the past few months. This is why checking the official Mexican consulate site regularly and getting written confirmation of requirements is non-negotiable.

Portugal, Colombia, Thailand & More

- Portugal: Enter on a tourist visa and apply for long-term residency from within the country. Programs like the D7 visa are still accessible.
- Colombia: Allows a shift from tourist to digital nomad or partnership-based residency once inside the country.
- Thailand: Offers education, retirement, elite, and digital nomad visa types. Many require advance application.
- Costa Rica & Panama: Offer temporary residency for retirees, remote workers, and entrepreneurs with proof of income and health insurance.

VISA & RESIDENCY PREP

Citizenship by Descent: Passport Paths for the Diaspora

Some countries offer citizenship or permanent residency by descent or heritage for African Americans and members of the African diaspora. As of Spring 2025, consider looking into:

- Ghana (Right of Return / Year of Return pathways)
- Sierra Leone (for DNA-confirmed ancestry)
- Barbados & Antigua (residency paths for descendants of enslaved Africans)
- Brazil & Panama (Afro-descendant and quilombo community pathways)

These may require DNA results, ancestral documentation, or cultural connection proof. Always work with regional legal advisors.

Peace Tip

Preparation is liberation. If you're serious about living abroad, make visa and residency research part of your weekly rhythm. Visit government websites, connect with local consulates, and avoid relying solely on secondhand social media info. Your peace deserves protection... and that starts with a plan.

RESOURCES FOR SURVIVORS, MOMS & MOVERS

Whether you're parenting solo, healing from trauma, or building a new life from scratch; this chapter is your toolkit. Here you'll find curated support, remote income ideas, housing leads, and communities that see you.

Build While You Heal

This isn't just about escape... it's about sustainability. Whether you're recovering from a toxic environment, solo parenting abroad, or rebuilding from scratch, these resources are curated to support your peace, purpose, and financial flow. Use what you need, skip what you don't. Bookmark this page; it's your digital survival toolkit.

Pro Tip: Create a single Google Doc "resume hub" with your skills, intro blurb, and links to work samples. Copy and paste for fast applications.

Remote Work Boards (Get Paid From Anywhere)

- Upwork.com – Ideal for writers, editors, admin support, and creatives.
- We Work Remotely – Best for tech jobs, customer service, and startups.
- Remote & Dynamite Jobs – Updated regularly with remote-first companies hiring globally.
- Virtual Vocations – Focused on U.S.-based remote positions.

Digital Income Creation (Start Small, Scale Later)

- Canva.com – Design templates, ebooks, journals, or social media graphics.
- Etsy.com – Sell digital downloads (planners, flashcards, lesson plans).
- Gumroad.com or Payhip.com – Sell courses, guides, or printables directly.
- Substack.com – Start a free newsletter and turn readers into supporters.

Gentle Reminder: You don't need a niche to start—you need a voice, a story, or a skill that solves a problem.

Aid, Scholarships & Funding Help

- FundMyTravel.com – Crowdfunding for relocation and gap year moves.
- Girls Going Global – Support and exposure for young women of color exploring international opportunities.
- GoAbroad.com – Study abroad and teach abroad scholarships.
- Single Mother Grants – Look for state-specific options and nonprofit funds (modestneeds.org, grants.gov).

Affirmation: You are not asking for help... you're accepting the support your future self already deserves.

Housing Support & Creative Living Options

- TrustedHousesitters.com – Live rent-free by caring for homes and pets.
- Workaway.info – Work-exchange programs in exchange for room and board.
- Facebook Groups – Try "Women Digital Nomads," "Black Women Expats," or "Single Moms Abroad."
- Nomad Soulmates – Community & friendship for remote workers and expats.

Don't forget: Every couch you surf, house you sit, or low-cost stay is a stepping stone, not a setback.

When Nova and I were on our way to Mexico, we camped overnight between two families in RVs in a Walmart parking lot. I didn't have gas money... just a vision and a prayer. Every morning, I woke up to unexpected deposits in my Cash App— just enough to get us to the next stop.

That journey taught me what trust really feels like. Even when you don't have all the answers, they will find you. Stay bold, stay smart, stay open. The vision you've been given is sacred, and the support you need is already on its way. You just have to put one foot in front of the other.

PASSPORT VALIDITY & RENEWAL TIPS

Your peace needs a passport. This chapter makes sure your paperwork is up to date and stress-free. We'll walk through common issues, renewal timelines, and tips for handling things with grace; even if you're on the move.

Secure Your Freedom Papers

Whether you're traveling solo, with children, or relocating abroad; your passport is your key to mobility. Checking its expiration date might seem small, but it can save you major stress down the road. This section will help you stay ahead of the paperwork so your next chapter doesn't get delayed at the border

What You Need to Know

Adult passports are valid for 10 years. If yours expires within the next year, start your renewal process.

- Children's passports are valid for 5 years and require an in-person application using Form DS-11.
- Most countries require 6 months of passport validity beyond your entry date. Always double-check the destination's policy.
- Passport renewals can take 6–10 weeks in the U.S.; expedited service takes 2–3 weeks. Embassies abroad may vary.

Peace Tip:

Don't wait until you're ready to book a flight. Make checking your passport part of your peace plan. The earlier you prepare, the easier it is to move when the moment arrives.

How to Renew (Inside or Outside the U.S.)

- Inside the U.S.: Use Form DS-82 for adult mail-in renewals. First-time applicants and children must apply in person using Form DS-11.
- Outside the U.S.: You can renew your passport at the nearest U.S. embassy or consulate. Check their website for appointment details and required documents.
- You'll need a valid passport (or expired within the last 5 years), a new passport photo, a completed form, and payment (card or money order).
- Parents with sole custody do not need permission from the other parent if they're not listed on the birth certificate—bring documentation just in case.
- Keep copies of your passport and documents backed up digitally in case of emergency.

TRAVELING SOLO WITH A CHILD?

It's not easy... but it is possible. This chapter outlines the documents, strategies, and mindset shifts you need to travel with a child, legally and confidently. If peace for you includes taking your little one with you, this is where you start.

Move Smart, Travel Protected

Traveling internationally with a child as a solo parent requires more than just a passport and plane ticket. Many countries enforce strict entry and exit rules to prevent child trafficking—and they will absolutely stop you at the border if your paperwork isn't complete. This section will help you move smart, stay protected, and travel with confidence.

Must-Have Documents

- Child's original or certified birth certificate (no photocopies).
- Your legal ID or valid passport.
- A notarized letter of consent from the other parent if they are listed on the birth certificate.
- Proof of sole custody if applicable. This can include a court order or the absence of the other parent's name on the birth certificate.
- Any additional documentation required by your destination country. Always double-check with their embassy.

Note: Some countries (especially in Latin America, Africa, and the Caribbean) are strict about these requirements. Do not assume they will make exceptions... Even for emergencies.

Tips for Using a U.S. Embassy or Consulate Abroad

- If your child's passport needs to be renewed while abroad, schedule an in-person appointment at your nearest U.S. embassy or consulate.
- You will need to complete Form DS-11 and provide supporting documentation (child's citizenship, parent ID, custody documentation if needed).
- Processing times vary, but generally range from 2 to 6 weeks depending on location and demand.
- Bring physical copies of all required documents, and back them up digitally in a secure folder.
- Plan ahead—don't wait until just before your trip. Embassy appointments can book out weeks in advance.

“TAKE YOUR TIME
TO PREPARE. YOU
WILL MAKE BETTER
DECISIONS WHEN YOUR MIND IS QUIET AND YOUR SPIRIT IS STEADY.”

-Iyanla Vanzant

Peace Tip:

Traveling with a child isn't impossible—it just requires a little more paperwork and a lot more preparation. Get your documents in order now, and you'll thank yourself later. Peaceful travel is possible when you're prepared.

HOW YOU CAN EARN ABROAD (PARENTS TOO)

Peace costs; and freedom should fund itself. This chapter explores ways for parents to earn money abroad, with a focus on flexibility, alignment, and low start-up stress. From digital work to creative income, we're making it make sense.

Flexible Income for a Rooted Life

Let's talk about how you'll support yourself financially once you're living free. Your income doesn't have to look traditional to be legitimate—and it doesn't need to look like anyone else's to work. This section includes flexible, creative, and real-world options for parents who want both freedom and stability.

Flexible Income for a Rooted Life

- Freelance & Remote Work: Virtual assistance, tutoring, writing, editing, transcription, customer service.
- Digital Products: Printables, guides, courses, journals, workbooks, and e-books sold via Etsy, Gumroad, or your own site.

- Local Services: Babysitting, cooking, massage, yoga classes, hosting Airbnb Experiences or guided tours.
- Affiliate Marketing: Recommend tools, courses, and travel gear you actually use. Done well, it can become steady passive income.
- Teaching English Abroad: TEFL/TESOL programs in countries like Thailand, Colombia, and South Korea often include housing, meals, a stipend, and school for your child.

Getting Started as a Virtual Assistant

Being a VA (virtual assistant) is one of the most flexible and in-demand jobs you can do from anywhere. If you're organized, tech-comfortable, and great at communication, this could be your lane. You don't need to be an expert—just reliable, adaptable, and open to learning.

Services you can offer:

- Inbox management
- Calendar & travel planning
- Social media content support
- Customer service or community support
- Online research and data entry

Where to start:

- Build a one-page service menu in Canva
- Set up a payment method like PayPal or Wise
- Join groups for entrepreneurs and pitch to solve their pain points

Pro Tip: You're not just doing tasks; you're offering peace of mind. Show up with calm energy and stay consistent.

Remote-Friendly Job Boards & Companies

- TimeEtc.com – Part-time VA roles with flexibility, perfect for moms.
- TheMomProject.com – Remote jobs tailored for working parents.
- HireMyMom.com – Home-based business and contract opportunities.
- FlexJobs.com – Curated remote jobs with part-time and 3rd shift options.
- Upwork.com – Freelance platform to find your first or next client.
- Appen & Lionbridge – Flexible task-based work, good for late night shifts.
- Amazon (Customer Service) – Often offers overnight remote roles.
- Co-Working While Parenting (Real-Life Tip)

In some countries, restaurants or co-working cafés offer monitored play zones. In Mexico, for example, one family-friendly spot provides safe, supervised play for around 30 pesos. You buy a meal, tip generously, and earn 2–3 hours of focused work. If you want the name of this place, DM me @TashaMoniqueSpeaks on Instagram.

Always be mindful: in many cultures, tipping is a core part of someone's income.

HOW YOU CAN EARN ABROAD

Bonus Tip:

If you're looking for a flexible and reliable way to fund your life overseas, teaching English—especially in Asia—can be a powerful path. Countries like Thailand, South Korea, Vietnam, and Japan frequently hire international teachers, and many programs include housing, airfare reimbursement, and paid vacation. While a TEFL or TESOL certificate and prior experience are preferred, they're not always required. In many cases, showing up with a degree, professionalism, and a willingness to learn is enough to get started.

A great resource to begin your search is ESLcafe.com, one of the longest-running job boards for English teachers worldwide. For the creative entrepreneur, the knowledge gained from your TEFL program—or even just your native fluency—can become the foundation for private tutoring or starting your own language-focused business abroad. Many communities are eager to learn English as a tool for career and educational advancement, and you might be the very bridge they've been waiting for.

Final Word:

You don't need to figure it all out today. Start where you are, do what you can, and keep your vision aligned with your peace. The right income will find you when you commit to showing up.

Bonus Tip:

In addition to paid monitored play spaces, many communities outside the U.S. are incredibly family-centric. You'll find clean, safe public playgrounds in almost every neighborhood. These spots often have picnic tables nearby, so you can set up with your laptop while your child plays in full view. Most local parents are actively engaging with their kids, and they'll usually keep a kind eye out for yours too. It's a totally different vibe—safer, more communal, and yes, you'll likely see more fathers at the park than you're used to. Get comfortable with it—it's one of the unexpected perks of parenting abroad. Start small. Stack skills. Build as you go.

STAYING GROUNDED ABROAD – A NOTE FOR THE UNICORNS

Being seen is powerful, but it can also be overwhelming. This chapter is your reminder that your energy, your boundaries, and your peace matter just as much as your passport. You are not just here to travel; you're here to transform. Let's talk about what it means to move through the world with Black girl magic... and still stay grounded in your truth.

Staying Grounded Abroad – A Note for the Unicorns

If you're a Black woman—or traveling with a beautiful Black child—you're going to be seen. Admired. Approached. Touched. And yes, sometimes even proposed to... more than once. Ask me how I know.

Here's the truth: You are not imagining the attention. There is a majestic energy that moves with you when you walk into new lands with peace, freedom, and melanin. People will feel it. They'll stare. Some will want to touch your hair, your child, your spirit. And while curiosity is human, your boundaries are sacred.

Please don't touch my hair.
Because it matters. Our bodies are not public domain.

Pack your peace by knowing your worth, your limits, and your safety protocols:

- Practice firm, polite phrases in the local language.
- Let your children hear you set boundaries kindly but clearly.
- Remember: admiration is not always innocent. Your passport, your energy, and your perceived access may attract more than just compliments.

And let's talk womb protection. If you are sexually active while abroad, understand that your body may be viewed as a path to something more—citizenship, visas, security. Even with U.S. birthright citizenship in flux, it's still real and valued in many places. Be empowered. Be informed. Guard your magic and your legacy with intention.

Remember: You're Magic, but...

I've been proposed to twice this year. And while I laugh about it now, I also understand the power dynamics in play. Be flattered—but be clear. Enjoy your freedom—but protect it. You are not just traveling. You are transforming. You are not just beautiful. You are a unicorn.

And unicorns? We don't just show up... we leave trails of magic behind.

Affirmation

I am not here to be consumed—I am here to experience, expand, and evolve. My story is sacred. My body is sovereign. My joy is not a commodity. I move through this world as a whole person, not a passport stamp or a passing memory.

Journal Prompt

Have you ever felt like you were being seen more for your body, your energy, or your origin than for who you actually are?

How do you want to be remembered by the places and people you meet? What boundaries will help you stay rooted in your truth while still being open to meaningful connection?

PEACE BECOMES THE SHORELINE

Each day offers a simple but powerful shift to help you reclaim your mental space and set the tone for the life you're building; abroad or otherwise. Silence isn't avoidance... it's alignment. Let this be your reset.

Let's be real... your energy has been on sale and folks been cashin' in. This 7-day challenge is your official notice to the world: access is earned; not assumed. Every day, you'll practice the art of quiet power; protecting your time, your voice, and your vision. Because honestly? Minding your business is the secret sauce to a happy life; and a smooth move abroad. The less people know, the less they can disrupt. Let them wonder while you walk in alignment. Peace is the new passport. And the move-abroad you is boarding... on a one-way flight to your future.

DAY ONE: The Boundary Broadcast

Today you claimed space. Whether you sent a text, posted a story, or simply whispered to yourself that you're unavailable... you declared that your peace comes first. Use this space to reflect on how it felt to draw that line. Did anyone test it? Did someone surprise you with support? What emotions came up when you made yourself unavailable on purpose?

NOTES:

DAY TWO: Mute the Noise

You turned the volume down on the outside world so you could hear yourself again. Maybe that meant silencing group chats, deleting apps, or just putting your phone on Do Not Disturb. How did the silence feel—awkward, freeing, loud? Use this space to note what tried to creep back in... and what finally got quiet.

DAY THREE: Sacred Time Slots

You scheduled your peace like it mattered—because it does. Whether you carved out time for journaling, a slow meal, or doing nothing at all, today was about honoring your own rhythm. How did it feel to prioritize you? Did anything (or anyone) try to interrupt it? Use this space to write about how that time served you—or what needs to shift.

DAY FOUR: The “No” Ritual

Saying “no” is a complete sentence—but it still brings up a lot. Maybe you said no out loud or just quietly chose yourself. Maybe you struggled with guilt or felt a wave of power. Use this space to unpack the experience: Who or what did you say no to? What did your body feel? And what came up afterward?

NOTES:

DAY FIVE: Pause Before You Post

You chose to hold your thoughts close instead of releasing them to the scroll. Today was about noticing what you usually post, why you share it, and what's left when there's no audience. What came up for you when you didn't perform, explain, or announce? Did something shift inward? Use this space to explore the stillness.

DAY SIX: Your Peace Playlist

You filled your space with sound that feeds you; music, affirmations, voices that uplift. Today was about curating instead of consuming. What did you listen to? How did your body respond? What felt different about moving through your day on your own frequency? Use this space to note what stays and what gets deleted.

DAY SEVEN: The Alignment Filter

Today you looked around and asked: Who really honors the version of me I'm becoming? Who respects my boundaries, my silence, my goals? Use this space to reflect on what you discovered. Are there people you're moving to the background? Are there new standards you're setting? This is your final gatekeeping day... so be honest.

hesitant about who you are."

RESOURCE LIBRARY

You don't need permission to pivot. You need peace.
You don't need more hustle. You need alignment.
You don't need a lot of money. You need a plan—and this is the first step.

THE LEGEND PLANNER

To bring this playbook to life, I personally recommend the Legend Planner. It's undated, beautifully designed, and a powerful accountability partner.

What makes it ideal:

- No dates = no guilt = start when YOU start
- Monthly vision spreads, weekly goal breakdowns, habit trackers
- Great for ADHD minds and visual thinkers
- It aligns seamlessly with your Peace Fund, GOLD Formula, and quiet season rituals

I use it to:

- Organize my monthly peace and power goals
- Reflect on habits, wins, and spiritual alignment
- Track how I show up for myself day to day

This planner turns this PDF into your *plan*. Your peace deserves structure

TRAVEL & BUDGET PLANNER

Organize budgets, itineraries, lodging, and must-see spots in one place

Store emergency contacts, safety tips, key phrases, and travel checklists

Track memories, photos, and daily expenses across up to 5 trips

Pairs perfectly with your Pack Your Peace playbook to turn planning into aligned, intentional action

Your dream life is calling

Your dream life isn't just waiting—it's calling. Calling to your peace. Calling to that version of you who's done settling, done shrinking, done surviving. And if you're anything like me, it's not just about you—it's about your baby too. I made this leap for my peace and my daughter's future.

ENROLL NOW

I offer one-to-one support for women who are ready to move abroad, but need more than a checklist—they need someone who gets it. Someone who's lived it. A lot of the voices out here giving travel advice are speaking from a single woman's perspective—or from a married couple's lane. And while I respect that, they just don't get what it's like to do this with a little one on your hip and the weight of it all on your shoulders.

I'll help you create a plan that feels real, aligned, and built around your actual life... not just the highlight reel. You don't have to do this alone. Let's build your exit with clarity, courage, and a whole lot of care.

CLIENT TESTIMONIAL

“I didn't even realize how much noise I was carrying until I started this challenge. Sis—this playbook got me reclaiming my mornings, saying 'no' without a dissertation, and finally making moves toward relocating without all the mental clutter. It's like therapy, but quieter. And way more portable.”

“When I first connected with Tashia I was working for the government and feeling stuck. She told me to look into getting my TEFL and think about teaching abroad. I followed her advice and thank God I did. I moved to Thailand and started teaching kids. Not long after people in my old department lost their jobs. I'm so glad I moved when I did. Honestly I think I was born in the wrong country. Thailand feels like home. These are my people.”

“I thought I was just tired. Turns out, I was unprotected. This guide helped me set boundaries I could actually stick to—and reminded me that peace isn't passive, it's something you build. I'm not going back to the old version of me. Period.”

THANK YOU!

Thank you for choosing your peace.
Whether you whispered your boundaries or roared them loud, every step you took in this playbook was a commitment to yourself. I'm honored you let me walk this part of the journey with you. May your peace be lasting, your next chapter be soft, and your energy be sacred and protected from here on out. You did that.

If you're ready to keep going—whether it's planning your move, building a freedom-based income, or just having someone in your corner—I'd love to walk with you. Let's build your next season together.

DM me @TashaMoniqueSpeaks on Instagram to work together.

And if no one told you today: your abundant, rooted, and aligned life called... and said, "Pack light, baby—we outside."

BONUS: MOVE ABROAD WITH NO MONEY

When You're Ready—But Your Bank Account Isn't

If you're dreaming of leaving but funds are low, you still have options. Many programs offer free housing, meals, and even stipends in exchange for your time and energy.

Whether you're retired, career-shifting, or starting over with no "in-demand" skills, you can still move abroad with purpose.

Explore volunteer networks like Workaway, WWOOF, and HelpStay where you can barter work for lodging and food—perfect for soft landings and cultural immersion. For those open to teaching, ESLcafe.com lists teaching jobs that include free housing and stipends, especially in Asia.

A TEFL/TESOL certificate is often preferred—but not always required.

Quick Start Tip:

Pick one country. Apply to 2–3 programs. Pack your peace. Go. The world is wide—and you don't need a trust fund to explore it.
